A Young Lady's Experience in Comparing Feet-The Rage for Linen-Cool Costumes Popular with Men.

When the people in this section of the country read about the grand fetes that are going on at Newport, Narragansett and other places, it never occurs to them that there is a possibility that the rich patrons of Newport have any trouble about getting up these affairs, but they do, just the same as people who have never seen the blue of salt water. Society correspondents of Newport have sent out a report that several entertainments which were planned have fallen through just because there were not enough persons to give the money to carry them to a successful end. The managers of the "doings" say that the reason they were given up is because there was so much else going on, but others say that the truth is that the leaders of the four hundred did not put up enough cash. So while the Hoosiers often fail in getting sufficient interest in entertainments to make them successful financially there are

An Eastern paper gives an account of young lady at one of the resorts, who is noted for her pretty feet and for the extravagant way in which she dresses them with costly shoes. One day last week a young man, who was also noted for his pedal extremities, made a wager of a tenpound box of candy that he could put on the young lady's slipper and not pinch his foot. She took him up as quick as a flash, and threw him her slipper, which he put on, as he said he would do. She has not only lost her wager but does not like it only lost her wager, but does not like it a bit that she come off second best in the Cinderella performance.

Dan Cupid is very busy these days, and there are reports that the number of weddings to take place in September and Oc-tober will rival the many of June.

The rage for linen increases. There are scores of old trunks in attics that have linen dresses, dust coats and circulars that were used for years, have stood repeated washings and still have come out fresh and like new from the laundry worker's hands. The linen dresses, shirt waists and odd skirts that are just now in fashion are exceedingly satisfactory garments and follow well in the succession of fabrics that have come in vogue in the last few years. Linen dresses are taking the place of the shirt dresses are taking the place of the shirt waist and wool skirt. These hot, sultry days one does not like the touch of a wool skirt, and the cool linen keeps fresh longer and wears better than anything else.

It is strange that men, who really love suits which some of the men have adopted really look what they are. The white duck trousers, negligee silk or soft linen shirt and the pongee coat and vest are delightfully cool. The Marion Club has adopted a uniform which is meeting with fayor. It is white trousers and a very light weight navy blue flannel or fine serge coat. The shirt waist is held with a leather belt, and there is relief from starched bosoms, stiff collars and cuffs and numerous garments. There never was a time when men and nen dressed so much alike.

"What are you doing with yourselves this hot weather?" was asked by one of a party of ladies who met before one of the bargain counters one morning last week. One said she was trying to keep cool, and after the marketing was done and she had been in the stores she went home, put on a loose wrapper and lounged the rest of the day. Another said she did nothing but hunt cool spots and drink ice water and hunt cool spots and drink ice water and ice tea. "Well," spoke up a third, "I am reading; just reading everything I can get my hands on." "Cramming for a club pa-per," was the interruption before the sen-tence was completed. "No, indeed. I am reading all the arctic literature I can get hold of in the library, and I have just devoured every word of Nansen's trip. I shall know all about the lands of snow and ice when I get through, and I do it for the purpose of cooling myself, but with the thermometer at 100 it is sometimes difficult to realize that it ever can be cold

> ANIMALS IN SUMMER. How They Manage to Be Comfortable the Very Hot Days.

London Spectator.

Deer both bathe and seek a draught in such weather. On one of the nottest days of last week a red deer hind took possession of an inlet in Penn pond in Richmond Park, swimming there and back, and spending the greater part of the morning in Robinson Crusoe fashion on the damp islet. Sheep do not suffer from the high-est temperature of the English climate if About sixty young people, members and shorn and left quiet with plenty of water. Friends of the Young Women's Christian Association, enjoyed a straw ride to Ham-the utmost distress at such times, and a mond's Grove Friday evening. The wagons | careful shepherd prefers to make the comthe morning or late in the evening. Dogs do not often die of sunstroke, but if made to work in great heat have violent fits and foaming at the mouth. Spaniels, if used for rabbiting in September, are very liable to these fits, and are cured by pouring cold water on the head and back of the neck. "Mad dogs!" is the silly cry usually raised on these occasions, though there is not the least cause for alarm, as the flow of saliva is quite harmless. When lying about the house at their ease individual dogs seem to take different views of the effects of hot weather. Some seek a draughty passage or lie on tiles or grass for choice rather than rugs or mats. They a draughty passage or lie at an open window, and nearly all revel in a bath. Curiously enough, however, much as a dog enjoys a swim in hot weather, it scarcely ever goes off of its own accord away from the house to take one. The writer once owned a setter which would do this. But as a rule, though they know where the water is, and will in dry localities run away half a mile when out for a walk in order to take a dip, they do not leave the house by themselves to have a bath. Cats never bathe, though tigers do so regularly in the Indian heats, and will sit for a long time up to their necks in water. But the cat seems to rejoice in any degree of heat, and to be willing to sit in a cucumber frame or a greenhouse or on a lead roof on the hottest days of the year. On the other hand, they become very thirsty in such weather, and, in the backs of small London houses, climb up to the cisterns to drink. Mr. Hagenbeck, the owner, of the Thier Park, at Hamburg, has found that his polar bears actually enjoy the hottest sun of midsummer, and lie out exposed to its rays when other animals are distressed by the heat. On the hottest day which he remembers to have felt in Hamburg he went round the grounds at midday to see if the animals needed any special treatment. Cases of human sunstroke had been dropping in at the hospitals all the morning and he was not supprised to find both sent, but will attend concerts and "beerve ing, and he was not surprised to find both a tiger and a leopard in a fit, and almost insensible. But the polar bear had left its inner cage and stretched itself flat on the hot stones, where it could enjoy to the full the excessive heat of the north German

Washington Letter. The first issue of the new $2 and $5 silver certificates will be made on Monday, August 10. They bid fair to excite as much attention and criticism as the $1 note, ations, and are totally unlike anything the people are familiar with in the way of paper money. Their fronts are printed in black ink, and their backs in the more familiar green. The $2 note was designed by Mr. Edwin H. Blashfield, of New York. The frontispiece is an allegorical representation of "science presenting steam and electricity to commerce and manufacture," and consists of five partly nude female figures in graceful poses. The treatment is described as almost distinctively American. The general idea of the main design is carried out on the back of the note, the main decorations of which are vignettes of Fulton and Morse, Walter Shirlaw, of New York, designed the $5 note, which is, if anything, more strikingly original than either of the other The face is almost entirely taken up with an allegorical picture representing "America enlightening the world." America is represented by a beautiful female, partly nude, holding in her right unlifted, a lighted incandescent She stands upon a representation of the North American continent, and the rays of her lamp are shed in all directions. Reclining at her feet is a female figure of fame, with the traditional trumpet and few clothes. Flanking these figures, which occupy the center of the front, is on one side a representation of Jupiter in his aerial charlot in the act of hurling a thunderbolt, typifying force. On the other side is a representation of peace, with the dove, etc. There is also a fine view of the The general effect is that of a liberal display of electricity and beautiful women. "I am greatly astonished to read in your papers of the number of people who die from excessive heat. In Tokio we have three months of very hot weather, just about the sort that you have in Washington, but it is a rare thing for any of my countrymen to expire from sunstroke. I think one reason that such deaths are infrequent in Japan is that the people dress in much lighter clothing than they do in the United States. They also are more temperate in the matter of food and drink, eating no meats and drinking no very ardent spirits. The rice
